ONLY ONE BATTERY NEEDED

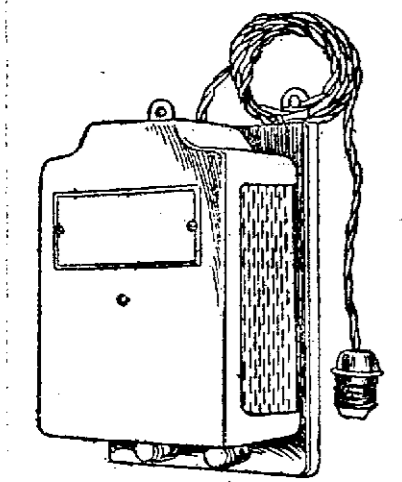

Cleveland Man Finds Small Rectifier Permits Charging at Home—It Is Small and Neat.

A Cleveland business man charges his battery for his gasoline car at home.

This battery is used for the lighting of the machine, as well as for emergency ignition purposes. Two years ago he was forced to buy two batteries, for the reason that it was necessary to take one to a charging plant to have it charged.

The current in his home was alternating, and direct current was necessary to charge the battery. When one was being charged, the other was in use on his car.

Now this charging is done at his home and at night when the car is not in use. And he only needs one battery.

This is accomplished by the alternating current rectifier shown in the illustration. This rectifier is connected to a lamp socket in the garage, the battery connected to it, and the current turned on.

With this device any automobile owner may connect up his ignition or lighting batteries at night, and they are charged and ready for service in the morning.

This type of rectifier is only made for charging small batteries. It is small and neat, will not easily get out of order, and will eliminate the necessity of having an additional battery.

SOME CHEWING TOBACCO AND THIRTY CENTS WAS HAUL OF LEYDEN THIEVES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Leyden, Sept. 2.—Thieves entered the Leyden store Wednesday evening, gaining entrance by removing a plate glass window. If they expected a large haul they were doomed to disappointment as the proprietor, J. D. Hemming, had placed the contents of his till, with the exception of thirty cents in his safe. Taking the thirty cents and some tobacco as a consolation the marauders made their departure.

A number of our people attended church in Janesville on Sunday. Miss Frances Hall of Janesville was an over Sunday guest of her sister, Mrs. P. S. Wolf.

School commenced Monday with Miss Alice Copeland of Evansville as teacher. Miss Copeland will make her home with the Spear family.

THREE MEN OFF DUTY RESULT OF ACCIDENT

Fire Fighting Force at West Side Station Badly Crippled.—Shortney is Resting Comfortably.

With three men off duty and suffering with injuries which may prevent their return to work for several weeks, Fire Chief Henry Klein's fire fighting force at the west side station is badly crippled as the result of the accident on Sunday night, in which the auto fire truck collided with the No. 2 hose wagon.

James Shortney, who was most seriously hurt of the three fire men in the accident, was resting as comfortably as could be expected at his home, 609 South Main street, today. His shoulders and chest were badly bruised and are still considerably swollen. The cuts on his head and neck are still painful. His physician has not stated how long he will be confined to his bed or the length of time he must be off duty.

It was thought that Fireman William Scott will be laid up for two weeks and Assistant Chief Cornelius Murphy may be unable to work for as long a period, the injury to his leg being more serious than was at first expected.

The radiator of the auto fire truck has been sent to the factory for repairs, but the truck is still in working order and made the run to the fire on Center avenue this afternoon. The hose wagon, which was wrecked, will not be needed as the fire department has sufficient equipment of this kind.

ATTEND CONFERENCE OF UNITED BRETHREN

The Rev. C. J. Roberts and Delegate Herman Kramer go to Ontario—Vote on Church Union.

The Rev. C. J. Roberts, pastor of the United Brethren church, and Herman Kramer, elected delegate of the local church, left today for Ontario, Wisconsin, to attend conference of the church. Bishop H. H. Font, D. D., recently elected, will preside. Among the important matters to come up for consideration is the election of a conference superintendent and that of union with the Methodist-Protestant church. This body has about 200,000 communicants. It is strong in Pennsylvania and New York and other parts of the east, but has no congregation in Wisconsin. It is so nearly akin to the United Brethren church in its spirit and administration that favorable action upon the question is anticipated.

The United Brethren church has 200,000 communicants in the United States and about 4,000 in Wisconsin. It is characteristically an American church, having been founded in this country. The Janesville church affiliated with that denomination made the best growth in its history during the past year and the delegate representing it has been instructed to try to have the Rev. Roberts returned to Janesville for next year.

OBITUARY

Alexander Wiggins. Alexander Wiggins, a well known resident of Orfordville, died at his home in that village yesterday noon as the result of an attack of heart failure. He had been sick for several weeks. Mr. Wiggins was an old resident of the town of Center. He was seventy-one years old at the time of his death, which thins the number of the Thirtieth Wisconsin Infantry regiment of which he was a member. Mr. Wiggins was the owner of the Seven Oaks dairy farm to the south of the city. Funeral services will be held at the church in Orfordville at 1 p. m. Thursday and burial will be made in the Grove cemetery in the town of Center.

Alfred A. Jackson. The funeral services for the late Alfred A. Jackson, will be held Wednesday afternoon at his late residence 303 North Jackson street, at two o'clock. The Rev. James Laughlin of the Presbyterian church officiating.

BEGIN HAULING GRAVEL FOR NEW BRIDGE TODAY

Superintendent Shore Expects to Start Mixing Cement the Latter Part of Week.

Contractor Charles E. Curtis began hauling gravel for the new Milwaukee Street bridge this afternoon and Superintendent Shore of the Gould Construction company expects to begin mixing concrete for the western abutment the latter part of next week. The pile driver was kept busy all day Monday and today driving anchor piles for the first cement pier. The cement mixer was also put into place ready for operations and a chute will be constructed to carry the mixture from the machine to a receiving platform at the edge of the coffer dam.

WILL PLANT GAME FISH IN LOWER ROCK RIVER

Millions of game fish are to be placed in Rock river within the next sixty days by the Illinois Game and Fish Commission. District Warden A. M. Clavin is now making arrangements to insure the success of lakes in Jo Daviess county and the fish will be placed in Rock river. It is announced today that it would be possible to supply Rock river with a million of fish a week from the Jo Daviess lakes. Express cars will be turned into water tanks, and in this manner they will be shipped to and distributed along Rock river.

TWO BELOIT MEN HURT IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

LABOR DAY PROGRAM A CREDIT TO UNION

Success Marks Efforts of Local Union of Carpenters and Joiners With Monday's Celebration.

The local union of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, who were in charge of the Labor day celebration in this city, are to be congratulated on the success in entertaining the city and the delegates from Beloit and Rockford. Favored with ideal weather the program was carried out in a most commendable manner.

The Labor parade was held at 10:30 and over a hundred and fifty local members and delegates from neighboring cities were in line. In the afternoon the band concerts by the Edgerton and Rockford Drum Corps were well attended. The two balloon ascensions were of a high order and a more daring flight in a gas bag is seldom seen. The start was made at the Y. M. C. A. tennis grounds, the balloon soaring for a distance of half a mile for the first ascension and nearly a mile and a half at the five o'clock flight. Both times the little trouble was experienced in finding a safe landing place.

The dance at the assembly hall in the evening was attended by over a hundred couples and despite the warm weather everyone enjoyed themselves. Success in every way marked the efforts of the carpenters and joiners to make the day a memory with Janesville people.

LABOR DAY EVENTS AT GOLF CLUB ON MONDAY

Mixed Foursomes—Club Supper—Dance in the Evening Enjoyed By Large Number of Members.

Labor day was celebrated at the Sunnyside golf club by a special program for the day which included mixed foursomes in the afternoon, for the cup donated by Miss Julia Lovejoy, the regular club supper and evening dance. During the afternoon the bridge games proved popular and the general attendance was much larger than at any previous club day during the summer. Miss Ruth Jeffris and Sherwood Sheldon captured the mixed foursomes prize with a high score. Miss McManus and Warren Wheelock finished second with a net score of 46, Mrs. Williams and Stanley Tallman were third with 47, Miss Irene Krotz and Orion Sutherland were fourth with 48, Miss Lovejoy and Al Schaller playing from scratch had a net score of 49 and Miss Fay Krotz and F. S. Sheldon had fifty.

CRATIFIED WITH SERVICES OF TWO BELOIT POLICEMEN

Chief of Police E. H. Ransom expressed his appreciation today of the services of the two Beloit policemen who assisted the local police at the Labor Day celebration. This is the second time during the year that Beloit officers have been able to assist to the Janesville police. The auto races earlier in the season being the other occasion. Two Janesville patrolmen were honored with invitations to serve at Beloit and assisted the Beloit police in the celebration. This exchange system is proving most satisfactory to the departments in both cities.

HAD LIGHT ATTENDANCE AT CARRIERS' MEETING

Because of the Labor Day diversions and the fact that many made it the occasion for an outing, the attendance at the Rock County Rural Letter Carriers' semi-annual convention was light. About twelve carriers were registered. Reports of the state convention were read, the coming national convention discussed, and other matters of interest to the carriers considered. Charles Taylor, postmaster at Orfordville, gave the carriers an appreciated talk.

POLICE COMMISSION WILL HOLD A MEETING TONIGHT

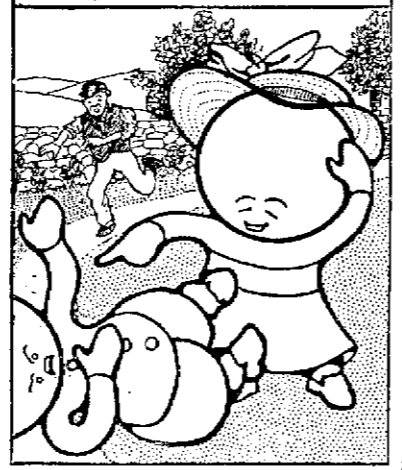

At a meeting of the fire and police commission this evening a president of the board will be elected to take the place of Harry O. Nowlan, resigned. Mayor Pathe has appointed F. C. Grant to succeed Nowlan on the board.

Charges against Assistant Fire Chief Murphy will be formally presented to the commission tonight. A. G. Metzinger being the complainant. He alleges neglect of duty on the part of Murphy at the recent fire which killed a horse belonging to Metzinger. John L. Fisher is Metzinger's attorney.

ALBERT PAVSON TERNHUNE

"BILLY BOWLEGS."

A very small Indian boy with a very long Indian name crouched behind a grassy knoll in a Florida swamp one day in 1835. With a bow as tall as himself he was sending a succession of arrows into a group of desperately fighting United States soldiers.

It was the battle in which brave Major Dade and his little body of troops were wiped out by Osceola's fierce Seminole warriors. Osceola (as an earlier article of this series told) took actual command of the Seminoles; but their Sachem was Micanopy an old man. The little boy with the big bow was Micanopy's grandson. From babyhood he was a ferocious, war-loving little chap. Most of his time was spent on horseback.

His efforts to sit astride the broad backs of the native horses and ponies had bent his legs into odd shape. The Indians often nicknamed each other from some peculiarity of face, figure or action. So the lad's real name was quickly forgotten and he was known through life as "Billy Bowlegs." Such, at least, was the way the Americans translated his longer Spanish title of "Gullermito a las piernas corvas."

A Boy Warrior.

The Dade battle was the first of Billy's many fights. In it he slew several white men and, by reckless courage as well as by Seminole cunning he won then a fame that was soon to spread throughout the United States.

Osceola had wrought terror and desolation from one end of the Seminole country to the other. When he was treacherously seized while going to a conference under a flag of truce, the government thought it would be easy to force his leaderless tribesmen into submission. But the war-fires Osceola had lighted were not to be so easily quenched. For years the conflict dragged on before the authorities were able to ship the sullen Seminoles west, to the reservation laid out for them. As it was, about 350 of the fiercest refused to go and managed to escape the government's agents by hiding in the Everglades. These rebellious Seminoles chose Billy Bowlegs for their sachem, or head chief.

Many years had passed since the Dade fight and Billy had grown to full manhood. He was a crack shot, a warrior of marvelous strength and endurance, and had, moreover, the faculty of escaping from every tight place in which he chanced to find himself. This last-named quality led his superstitious followers to believe Billy had the power to make himself invisible. At one time he secretly led a party of his braves on a sixty-mile march away from their Everglades stronghold to Lake Kissimmee, where at daylight he fell upon the fort there and well-nigh carried it by storm before the large garrison was fairly awake. Pestered back at last by superior numbers, he retreated in good order.

Captain Clarke, commandant of the fort, led a party of soldiers in pursuit of the retreating Indians. This suited Billy Bowlegs perfectly. He entrenched his men around a little hill, and poured forth such a galling, deadly fire that the troops were beaten back with heavy loss. Reinforcements were hurried to the spot by General Harney, who hoped to catch the Seminoles before they could get back to the safety of the Everglades. But Billy Bowlegs was too clever for him. The whole party had vanished by the time the government reinforcements came up.

The war department, angry at the Seminole leader's audacious raids, sent a big expedition under Colonel Loomis to crush him. Loomis divided his force and attacked the Everglades from many different points. One company was so fortunate as to come upon a party of Indians who were carrying their wives and children to a place of safety. Billy Bowlegs was leading the fugitives. The troops galloped down upon the Indians, shooting, slashing and capturing. But when the smoke of battle cleared away it was found that Billy Bowlegs had escaped—as usual.

Force, diplomacy, trickery, bribery, were all tried against him in vain. Billy could not be caught.

At length, little by little, his best followers were killed or imprisoned, and the brave old chief was shorn of all his power. He was obliged, for the sake of the Seminoles who remained, to sue for peace. With 165 of his people he was sent to Indian Territory. But the surrender broke his proud heart. Within a few months after his removal from the Everglades he died.

Bridge Entirely of Bamboo.

In Java the government engineers have recently constructed a road bridge more than a hundred feet long, with a central span of over 60 feet, entirely of bamboo. The roadbed is composed of bamboo matting, which will be covered with a layer of dry earth. In profile the bridge resembles a steel structure, but all the members are bamboo rods. It is estimated that such a bridge should be good for 10 or 15 years. There are two kinds of bamboo used in building and cabinet making in the east, one having solid and the other hollow stems. The solid, seen in Japanese furniture, is much smaller than the hollow, but both belong to the same species. In the construction of bamboo houses no nails are used. The parts are bound together with lashings formed from the skin of the bamboo itself.

METHOD OF COOLING ASHES

Sprinkling Device Invented by New York Man Enables User to Kill Fire—Also Good Protector.

A sprinkling device has been invented by a New York man that enables the user to put out the fire in the red-hot ashes he takes down and sift them at once. An upright standard with a horizontal arm is fastened to a base on the floor in front of the heater. This holds an L shaped pipe which has a reservoir for water at the top and a sprinkler at the other end and which moves about so that the sprinkler can be in about so that the sprinkler can be in served in the door of the ash pit or can be swung around out of the way. A stop cock regulates the flow of water from the reservoir to the sprinkler.

It often happens that the man who tends the furnace wants to sift the ashes and recover the good coal at the same time that he takes the fire down and builds it up fresh. When the ashes are redhot this is an unpleasant, if not practically impossible, operation. The sprinkling device here shown overcomes this difficulty and also acts as an efficient protection from fires resulting from the removal of too hot ashes.

SAW HANDLE IS REMOVABLE

Saves Carpenter Trouble of Carrying Bulky Tools—Can Be Attached to Many Blades.

Heretofore to be equipped for any sort of work that would turn up a carpenter had to carry at least three or four saws in his kit, and saws take up room. Now a New York man has devised a removable saw handle, so that all the carpenter need take along is a variety of blades, which can be stowed away in the bottom of the box and not noticed. Each blade is made with a slot in the end that slides into the slot in the handle. There is a locking device in the handle which holds the blade as firmly in place as if it were there to stay. The convenience of this arrangement can readily be understood, even by those who are not familiar with tools, and to the carpenter himself it is a godsend. He can carry a dozen saw blades, if he likes, in the space needed for one saw with the handle fast.

Paper Bottles.

The latest big monopoly is said to be a trust which has obtained control of every machine devised for the manufacture of paper bottles and other containers for foodstuffs and liquids. The new package or bottle will be made so that it will be destroyed when opened and must be thrown away and a new one purchased with every package of food or liquid. This means that bottles for milk, vinegar and all liquids and packages for butter, oysters, mince and everything else can be used only once. This will greatly increase the cost of living.

Automobiles Exported.

The bureau of statistics shows that American automobiles are shipped every year to Mexico, the West Indies and various countries in South America, Asia, Oceania and Africa.

FOR COURT REFORMS.

In the picturesque metropolis of Canada a distinguished gathering of lawyers from the United States is working upon plans for the promotion of greater harmony and some approach to uniformity in the procedure of American courts. Federal and state judges are taking advantage of the annual meeting of the American Bar Association at Montreal to seek some practical means of reforming the rules of pleading and practice in the courts of the United States and of the several states.

The goal which these eminent lawyers and jurists hope to reach, in the end, is a reformed and greatly simplified and modernized system of transacting legal business in the courts of all civil divisions of the American republic. They aim to set in motion forces which will continue active until the law's delays shall have been much lessened, the expense of litigation greatly diminished, and the differences in procedure between the courts of various states and sections practically eliminated.

This movement aims to accomplish one of the most important of the reforms sought by progressive and enlightened Americans. It will make the courts stronger, as it gains ground, and better assured of the entire loyalty and confidence of the people. It will serve the ends of justice and promote good government. Enormous waste of time and money will be prevented.

Hitherto the lawyers of the United States have been accused of being chiefly to blame for the excessive delays and costs of court procedure. If the American Bar Association can remove this reproach from the legal profession it will earn the praise of far-seeing lawyers and laymen alike.

SCHOOL OPENS.

Today marked the opening of the city schools. It is perhaps unfortunate that the climatic conditions of Wisconsin do not conform with the fast-bound regulations of opening schools the day after Labor day each year. It is usually too warm for real brain work for several days after the schools open and the children, fresh from their out-of-door work, become fretful and nervous and can not concentrate their minds on their books. In some cities, Madison for instance, the date for opening the schools is set a week later, which is somewhat better. However, the schools are open in Janesville and teaching of the three R's has begun. Owing to failure to obtain building material for the re-construction of the Jefferson school, no material changes have been made in this building and the same conditions exist this year as last as regards lighting facilities. The schools however have been thoroughly gone over and should be in as good sanitary condition as is possible with buildings as old as are the Janesville schools. Some day the city will take to the needs of the schools and tear down the old structures and rebuild them, making them sanitary and up-to-date as befits a city the size of Janesville. It can not all be accomplished in a day or a year, but it will come.

MEXICO DEFIANT.

Mexico still retains the defiant attitude and it is reported that the Mexican people are now aroused to the responsibility of aiding Huerta and his government and are furnishing him with money and men to aid in his defiance of the United States and all other countries who dare to assert that he is in the wrong. Meanwhile the so-called rebels in the northern portion of the country continue their warfare against him and the fight goes merrily on.

It will not escape the notice of those interested in Mexico that recognition by the United States does not save the Chinese republic from revolutions.

Secretary Daniels is making a lengthy visit in the Central Western states. Probably looking into the condition of the naval affairs there.

Now Harry Thaw says he cannot live on $12,000 a year. And to make matters worse he is unable to go upon the lecture platform.

It seems that Senator Bristow is himself no stranger to the Chautauqua circuit. Then is there no honor among lecturers?

It's very kind of the European powers to take such an interest in Mexico, with the Balkan allies still on their hands.

Objection is made to the name "policewoman" for the new women members of the Chicago police force. Will "copettes" do?

Brother Moore may well retire on his journalistic laurels, as no other editor ever succeeded in marrying Lillian Russell.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's $4,000-a-week salary has been garnished. Possibly now we shall not out how much of it is real money.

A man was choked to death by his stiff collar in Pittsburgh. But the male slaves of fashion will go on wearing 'em.

Secretary Bryan's reply seems to leave Japan no recourse except to enter a protest against our form of government.

In giving Dunfermline $10,000,000 more, Mr. Carnegie evidently desires to make his birthplace flush as well as famous.

The four Denver editors arrested for printing "September Morn" are lucky that it wasn't the Venus of Medici.

Doubtless Secretary Daniels now understands why officers of the army and navy are expected to weigh their words.

And Mr. Taft never uttered a word of warning when Mr. Bryan announced that he was going to speak at Wiltona.

So far Roumania has fired no shot in the Balkan war. Its glory crop is correspondingly meager.

Seattle can no longer be denied the right to refer to herself as the Paterson of the Pacific slope.

Bulgaria is being attacked from the south, west and north. The Black sea lies on the east.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

TELL OTHERS.

When you want to boost a friend don't tell him how good he is; tell others.—Washington Post.

That is fine—a sermon in a sentence. Your telling him may give him self confidence and may give him a swollen head. It stands about the same chance of doing harm as good.

But there is no mixed or doubtful result about telling it to others. That can only result in doing him good.

Each of us can remember men who have been started upward by that sort of boosting.

Some one drops an incidental remark:

"Hello! There's young Brown. He's making good."

Just a mental seed sown, but it takes root and grows.

A few days later Brown's name is mentioned in the presence of one who heard this remark. The associated ideas work, and he replies:

"Yes; I hear good reports of him."

That seed also falls in fertile ground. Meanwhile the friend is not idle. By a chance sentence here and there he sows Brown's praises. If wise and tactful he is careful not to overdo it.

In a short time there is a whole harvest of good thoughts and words about young Mr. Brown.

By and by some employer wants a man for an important place.

"What about this young fellow Brown?" he muses. "I have heard him well spoken of."

He investigates, and if he finds nothing of moment against the man all these words in his favor have weight.

Result—Brown receives the offer of the important place.

Then it is up to him. If he makes good the world is before him.

He got his chance because a friend spoke of his good points—to others.

That method of boosting, or something very like it, has been used more than any of us probably imagine.

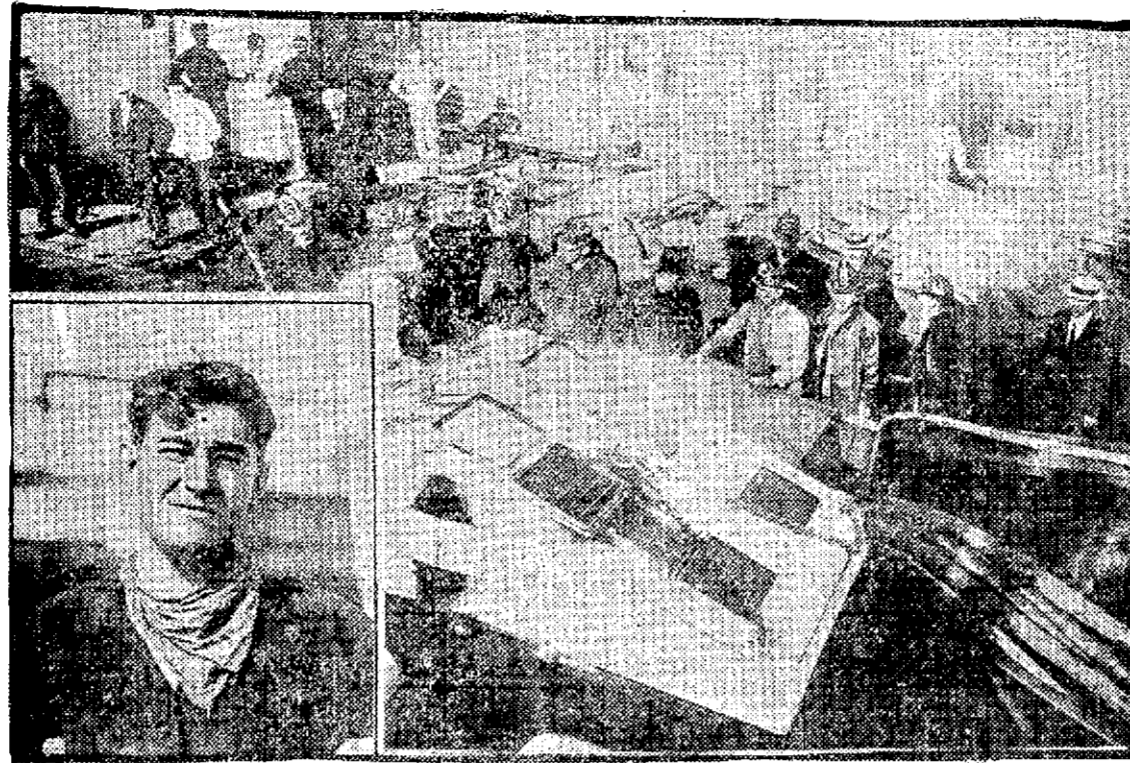

Nor has it been set in motion as the result of collusion. It came about simply and naturally because one man believed in another and wanted to help him on.

If you would boost your friend, praise him—to others.

Egotists Classified.

LIVES IMPERILED AS FIRE SWEEPS WORLD'S GREATEST SHIP

Firemen aboard Imperator fighting fire in hold; insert shows Hoseman Michael Fitzpatrick.

Twenty-three hundred lives and more than $10,000,000 in property were imperiled by fire which for five hours Thursday, threatened to destroy the Imperator, the world's greatest and most luxurious ship, as she lay at her dock at Hoboken, N. J. Firemen from Hoboken and from New York fireboats succeeded in quelling the flames after more than $100,000 damage had been done. When the blaze was finally drowned the water stood thirty-five feet deep in the flooded compartments. One of the firemen who showed extraordinary bravery was Michael Fitzpatrick, who was overcome by smoke and taken to the hospital, but returned later to help fight the fire.

His Position.

"Life is not all beer and skittles," musingly said the tall-browed, dream-eyed person. "No, sir!" promptly replied Col. Bagdad. "I care very little for beer, sir; and as for skittles, whatever they may be, I have never drank any of 'em in my whole life."—Smart Set.

Genius and Sleep.

Dr. Savary, addressing the French Academy of Sciences, warned his hearers against getting up immediately on awakening from sleep. The eminent Charles Lamb uttered the same warning many years ago. It is thus that men of genius anticipate the professional experts.

Siberia's Many Minerals.

Foremost among the minerals, etc., which Russians regard as the source of Siberia's future wealth, are gold, iron, copper, platinum, emeralds, topazes, asbestos, Glauber's salt, rock salt, and, in all probability, naphtha.

ROUTINE BUSINESS AT WEEKLY SESSION

City Council Receives Report of Health Officer And Allows Pay Roll for Month of August.

Business of routine nature was disposed of at the regular weekly meeting of the city commissioners at three o'clock at the city hall. The report of Health Officer S. B. Buckmaster was presented. Dr. Buckmaster stated that the health of the city is very good especially as to contagious diseases. For more than two weeks there has not been a placard on a home in the city which is an unusual condition which is not probable will continue long after the opening of school.

As registrar of vital statistics Dr. Buckmaster reports eight marriages, twenty-four births, sixteen deaths and one abortion during the month of August. Of the deaths not more than two were due to the same cause. The pay roll for the month of August was allowed. It amounted to nearly five thousand dollars, the exact figure will not be known until the report of W. E. Dulin, superintendent of the city stone crusher plant, for the period, Aug. 18 to 30, indicating that 11½ yards of stone have been crushed, was also received. All but yard and a half of the stone was crushed for the city.

HIGH SCHOOL SHOWS LARGER ATTENDANCE

Four Hundred and Seventeen Students Enrolled This Morning—Ward School Attendance Normal.

An increase of a score or more of students at the high school this year was evident from the number enrolled at the opening of school this morning. Four hundred and seventeen students began their year's work which is a considerable advance over last year. The ward schools of the city report a normal attendance with the exception of the Adams school which was effected somewhat by the new St. Mary's parochial school which will open next Monday.

At the high school and in the wards schools the morning session was devoted to the work of organizing classes and recitations will not begin until tomorrow. The book stores and supply stores were thronged this afternoon with youngsters, each with a list of books and supplies which will be needed in the search for wisdom.

CRUSHED TO DEATH IN TRAIN ACCIDENT

John Queeney Killed While Coupling Cars at Jefferson Monday Afternoon—Leaves Family.

John Queeney, employed on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad as a freight train conductor, residing on Dodge street, was killed Monday afternoon at Jefferson while switching at a siding.

Mr. Queeney was attempting to loosen a slack chain on a bad order car in the rear of the caboose when the locomotive backed up to couple on the other cars and when the shock came, Queeney was crushed between the two cars. The beams of the freight car crushed his chest and death came as a relief to his terrible pain about 10 minutes after the accident. He was brought to Janesville on the nine o'clock passenger train last evening.

Deep sorrow follows the accident as he leaves to mourn his loss and a loving wife and two daughters, one aged twelve and the other an infant. Mr. Queeney had been in the employ of the Northwestern railroad for many years and was favored with many friends among the trainmen.

Funeral services will be held at St. Patrick's church tomorrow morning at nine o'clock. Interment will be in Mt. Olive cemetery.

MANY APPLICATIONS FOR HUNTING PERMIT

County Clerk Lee Busy Attending to Requests of Sportsmen—Duck Season Opens September 7.

With the open season for ducks and shore birds but five days distant, County Clerk Howard Lee is busy attending to applications for hunting licenses. This morning's mail brought in no less than twenty-eight. Many hunters are calling in person. Deputy Game Warden William P. Mason was one of those to obtain a license this morning.

No women have yet made application for hunting licenses, but County Clerk Lee states that there are three or four who obtain them every year. Two of them accompany their husbands on deer hunting trips. Game Warden Mason reports that ducks are more plentiful than last fall. The game laws permit the shooting of fifteen ducks and five shore birds by each hunter. Mud-hens are classified as ducks. Prairie chickens, which are under protection until 1915, are plentiful in the dry marshes and mud-birds rapidly. Quail are also more numerous than formerly. Outside of the illegal hunter, the greatest enemy of the quail are deep, crustal snows, which prevent them from obtaining their food and cause them to starve to death.

PIONEER OF COUNTY IS DEAD IN CHICAGO

James H. Boyd, for Many Years a Resident of Town of Harmony, Dies at Daughter's Home.

James H. Boyd, an early settler in Rock county, passed away Monday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. B. Shea, 1916 Lawrence avenue, Chicago.

WOMAN AUTO DRIVER HAS BAD ACCIDENT

Narrow Escape for Mrs. Fred Carr And Her Sister of Chicago When Street Car Hits Machine.

Mrs. Frederick Carr and her sister, Mrs. C. C. Wheeler, both of Chicago, narrowly escaped a serious accident this morning when the automobile owned and driven by Mrs. Carr, was struck by the Milton avenue street car in front of the Ford garage on East Milwaukee street. Mrs. Carr was just turning into the garage with her machine when its engine would "dead," leaving her helpless in front of the approaching trolley car. The motorman applied the brakes and brought his car to a stop as quickly as possible, but not before the automobile was struck. The women were uninjured but the steering gear of their machine was damaged.

ELGIN BUTTER QUOTED AT THIRTY CENTS TODAY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 2.—Elgin butter was quoted at thirty cents and firm today.

LOCAL MARKETS

Home grown pumpkins are beginning to appear on the local market and are selling from ten to fifteen cents apiece. Good old pumpkin pie will undoubtedly be seen on many of the housewives' tables within the next few weeks because the dealers report a heavy sale. Musk melons, home grown, are selling heavy and because of the unusual quality there is a big demand for them. Prices range from eight to fifteen cents.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

CALAMITY HOWLERS.

Breaking bad news is generally supposed to be a most unpleasant job but there are some people who do not seem to find it so.

On the contrary they apparently take great pleasure in breaking all the bits of bad news they can find to the people whom they concern.

For instance, a little friend of mine was asked to attend commencement this spring by a college man she much admires. It was the first attention he had paid her and she was most anxious to look her best. She has an exclusive kind of prettiness which is extremely dependent on conditions and she knows it. On the great day we met her on the college campus. Her excessive anxiety to look well had defeated itself. She did not look as pretty as usual. My companion who was a relative of the girl and so entitled to a relative's privileges, eyed her critically. "Your gown is lovely," she said finally, "but why didn't you wear your other hat?" It's much more becoming.

Imagine saying such a thing when you didn't have to and couldn't accomplish a thing by doing it. The sunshine went out of that girl's face in an instant. Taking still more of her attractiveness with it. For myself I could have cried. But my companion didn't seem to mind at all.

Apparently she thought she had performed a duty, and a pleasant duty at that.

The other day I bought a long desired rain coat. I was showing it to some friends. "Where did you get it?" asked one of them. I told her. "You did? Well, you might as well have thrown your money out the window," she informed me with that cheerful resignation we keep for other people's troubles. "The one I bought there wore out in a few weeks and I know several people who had the same experience."

Needless to say, my raincoat is spoiled for me. I scarcely dare wear it for fear of seeing it go to pieces.

Again, a neighbor of mine has a dear old mother whose sight is failing. They have a first class specialist and hope to arrest the trouble, and my neighbor is trying to be optimistic about it and to think she sees some improvement. The other day I found her on the verge of tears. "Mrs. M. has been in here," she explained, "and she says she thinks mother is a lot worse, and several people have told her the same thing."

A queer thing about these calamity howlers is that they are always most anxious to break bad news to their dearest friends. Apparently they think they are showing their devotion by so doing.

They make a great mistake. Friendship and frankness should go hand in hand, but only the frankness that helps, not the kind that causes needless suffering.

A true friend is one who will always tell you unpleasant truths when by so doing he can help you, but will always keep unpleasant truths to himself when it won't do you any good to know them.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of seventeen. I work hard and when I do not go out in the evening my parents say that all the boys have enough of me, and when I do go out and come home at 11 o'clock my parents say that they will allow me to do that any longer. They are very mean to me and often say that if I will keep that up I should leave home.

I know if I would go away to another city I could support myself, because I am a hard-working girl. I have a very nice home and I am not very bad looking and dress well, but I am getting sick of my parents because they accuse me of being so bad. What should I do, leave home or suffer? I have suffered that way for one year.

You are too young to go out every night for amusement, my dear. Why not take half of the evenings of each national day. The American delegates are really interesting, you know. If you will be as open and good-natured with them as you are with the young folks you know, you will discover that they are not so fault-finding. Tell them about the boys and girls you like to go with. Amuse them, get them to laughing. Let your mother and father feel that you think they are the finest people in the world, and you will be a far happier girl.

When you do go out, try not to stay so late. A girl of your age ought to be in bed at 10 o'clock instead of being out with the boys. You will not be pretty very long if you work on the installment all day and play half of the night.

Dearest Mrs. Thompson: We are two girl friends age twelve and fourteen.

(1) Are we too young to keep company with boys?

(2) Our hair is very short. What will make it grow longer?

(3) Will tan shoes be worn this fall?

(4) You are too young to keep company with boys, though I hope you and the boys are good friends. Don't try to be grown-up, dear little girls, and do keep away from any mischief with the boys; it will only hurt you later on.

(5) Brush it a great deal, every day, give it an egg shampoo every two or three weeks in the summer and once a month in winter. Rub a little vasoline into the scalp once a week and massage the scalp well. Keep your brushes and combs very clean. Keep up your general health, too, if you want to have nice hair.

(6) Yes.

Dearest Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-three. I have been going with a girl of seven months. Now we are engaged.

(1) Do you think we have been going together long enough to get married?

(2) Do you think it advisable for us to pay cash for our household plan and put that money in the bank and save it for hard times?

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

(3) Do you think if a girl lets a boy kiss her after they are engaged that it would turn him against her?

(4) What kind of a suit should I wear to get married in?

ANXIOUS BOBBY.

(1) If the girl is eighteen or over and you are able to support her there is no reason for delay. Marry her now and may your both be very happy.

(2) Better pay cash for your goods, and don't go in debt for anything. The installment plan looks easy, but it's mighty hard when you begin to try it out, because it encourages you to try more than you can afford. Keep right on saving after you are married. If she is a sensible girl she will want to do that.

(3) Not if he really loves the girl. She should not let him "slop over" too much.

(4) Black with black shoes, for an evening wedding. Dark blue or navy dark color, with black shoes, for a day wedding.

THE TABLE.

Watermelon Sweetmeat.—Cut the red part of a watermelon into small pieces, rejecting all seeds. Weigh and take an equal weight in sugar. Add to this mixture ten lemons, sliced thinly (four to a large melon), and all together about three hours or until thick. Put into small glasses. Delicious.

Goulash.—Take six onions cut up in square pieces, place in one table spoon of salt; when brown add two pounds of beef cut in small pieces (chuck or round), add salt, and let simmer an hour and a half. Add when tender a little thickening.

New Fruit Dish.—Take one quart of melon peaches sliced thin, one quart of small plums cut in halves (remove seeds). Mix one-half cup of sugar with the peaches and plums, let stand 30 minutes; serve with or without cream.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

SWEET is the pleasure itself cannot spoil! Is not true pleasure one with true toil? Thou who wouldst taste it, still do thy best.

Use it, not waste it—else 'tis no rest. Goethe.

RECIPES AND SUGGESTIONS.

Through the hot weather there is no centerpiece so attractive as fruit with fresh leaves. The attractive baskets that are on the market now make the prettiest of receptacles for both flowers and fruit.

When serving cream cheese of any kind, a plate covered with leaves instead of a doily is cool and inviting. When the autumn tints the leaves another gorgeous array of coloring is ready at hand. Salad plates and often desserts like pie can be wonderfully beautified by a beautiful leaf or two.

Green Tomato Mince Meat.—This is a recipe which is in great demand. Chop fine four quarts of green tomatoes. Drain off the juice, cover with cold water. Let come to a boil and scald thirty minutes; drain well. Add two pounds of brown sugar, one pound of seeded raisins, a half pound of chopped citron, a half cup of finely chopped suet, one tablespoonful of salt and the juice of half a dozen lemons. Stir well and cook slowly until thick. When cool, add a teaspoonful each of ground cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg.

Tomato Relish.—Peel, chop and drain a peck of fine ripe tomatoes. Add two cupfuls of chopped celery, six onions and six green peppers, remove the seeds from the peppers before chopping them; one pound of brown sugar, two quarts of vinegar, one cup of salt two ounces of mustard seed and a little nutmeg. Mix thoroughly and put into well sterilized jars. This will keep indefinitely without cooking.

Egyptian Salad.—Cut corn from three or four ears of cooked corn, leaving the hulls on the corn and pressing out the kernels; add equal parts of cooked rice, a tablespoon of chopped pepper, and mix the whole with mayonnaise dressing.

Put a tablespoonful into the heart leaves of head lettuce.

For those who find difficulty in digesting coconut, try grinding it twice through the meat chopper.

Fads and Fashions

New York, Sept. 2.—Ultra fashionable women, who can afford to spend a small fortune for clothes every season, do not wait in ordering their outfits until the latest fashions are intended is at the door, which is a rule they make their selections many months ahead of time. But, the women with unlimited funds at their disposal are greatly in the minority. The average woman with but moderate means, perhaps, exceedingly limited means, cannot afford to take chances. She wishes to be in style and, knowing from experience that styles are constantly changing, she is wise enough to wait almost to the last moment before ordering or purchasing her clothes for the coming season. It is a matter of policy with them to watch out for every indication of a pending change and to consider the matter carefully, as she cannot afford to cast her gown or coat aside after a week or so, should it fail to be in harmony with the prevailing style of the day. It is the woman of moderate means that timely hints concerning probable styles of the coming season are most valuable.

It will be well for her to remember that, according to the opinion of fashion experts, the coming season will be especially at the back. The cut-away line with a three-quarter length is the model that has been accorded particular favor. In front there is great opportunity for decoration, and the most intelligently used is the waistcoat. This is either separate or incorporated in the suit. It gives a note of color to a jacket and allows of so many novel touches that it is virtually indispensable. The most popular materials of satin, all corded silks, suede cloth, chambray, moire and washable pique. Bindings of braid and trimmings of buttons are of the decorative features and a smoothness of fit is essential for the effect.

The waistcoats of these fall suits have square, pointed and crossed tops, with inset revers of lace and satin moire collars. Pockets are also used to the comfort and convenience of the wearers.

On the fall suits there will be used sleeves of the long, fitted type and the kimono sleeve with the dropped armhole. The kimono effect, especially at the front, is particularly striking. From the front a sweeping line over the hips and a long tail at the back finish the coat.

A Russian model of velvet will bid for applause. The pellem of the skirt contrasts considerably with the rich trimmings of the collar line and the cuffs. Braid and buttons give a dashing effect to the line of fastening.

In the skirts of the fall suits there will be many innovations. The long line from waist to hem is rarely left unbroken. Seams are modified by tabs, extensions and flaps. Side seams are slashed. There is drapery at all sides, the folds around the top of the skirt being the newest. The skirt is held down flat under a short strap belt or a group of buckles.

Buttons are used extensively and profusely this fall. They are both useful and ornamental. The slashes on the skirt have frequently regular button holes and buttons which work. This keeps the length of the slash and some of them come quite high—under the control of the wearer. A military trimming of braid and buttons in horizontal lines on a coat is sure to appeal to the women who prefer a military style. A straight military collar is used with this type of coat.

The fichu has returned with added popularity, a fact which will be welcomed by dainty women. The fichu has always been numbered among the artistic trimmings, and the woman who admires a picturesque gown should always choose this type of adornment. Paris designers have extensively employed the fichu as a garniture on the lingerie frocks this season, and it appears in many phases.

Almost every sheer material has been successfully utilized to fashion the fichu and it is made in all widths and lengths, from the broad Marie Antoinette fichu to the narrow strip of folded maillie outlining the neck line of the bodice.

The more expensive fichus are of rare laces or embroidered, while simple designs of white net bordered with a narrow pleated frill of the same material are surprisingly inexpensive. Unusually dainty is a fichu of Bohemian lace with inset medallions of embroidered net. The edges are bound with a bias fold of black mousseline de sel, and buttons covered with the same.

DAINTY AFTERNOON DRESS OF SILK VOILE

This dainty dress is made of mustard-colored silk voile. The long sleeves are slightly puffed into shaped cuffs, which are trimmed with pearl buttons and edged by a deep ruffle of white chiffon. The side sections of the bodice are of chiffon to match. The skirt has a group down the back and a lap down the front. The right side of the skirt is draped at the front and back, the material falling in soft folds below the hips.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

By FRANCIS JOYCE KENNEDY

Every obstacle in human life is for a purpose, to overcome obstacles is to strengthen character and, rightly viewed they can be turned into blessings. To take our "bumps" with a smile and learn to extract the essence of ability to force ahead from them is a life that will have a strong tendency to lead us upward. To carry trials into triumphs, vexations into victories, to be not easily stampeded; to dare to act on the strength of one's own convictions is to be successful. Such success is never an accident. The path of success is steeper and more thorny today than ever before. Carlyle says that "the race of life has become intense." Nothing great can be accomplished without pluck, hope, grit and enthusiasm. No one is ever beaten unless he is discouraged. To think a thing is impossible is to make it so. No tyrannical circumstances can permanently impress a determined will. Don't stop to whine and say that insurmountable barriers loom before you. Play the game. Other people may not believe in you. That matters not. It is when you do not believe in yourself that you fail.

A lobster we are told when left high and dry among the rocks, has not backbone and energy enough to work his way back to the sea, but waits for the sea to come to him. If it does not come he remains where he is and dies. The world is full of human lobsters—people stranded on the rocks of some hardship or misfortune, who instead of putting forth their own energies, wait for some billow of good fortune to set them afloat, whirling the while about their "hard luck." Luck—genuine luck—is spelled with a letter L.

Have you ever read that little sermonette on success? Some of it runs something like this: "The way to do a thing is to go and do it." If there be a particularly disagreeable task before you, begin with that, and so save yourself several hours of dread, aside from having it done the sooner. The people who have succeeded in life are the ones who have turned the spare moments, which most of us trivial away into productive work or thought. Even in one's hour of relaxation one often meets with an idea, in reading or conversation which would be valuable if remembered. Instead it is easily forgotten. Make note of it in your mind at the time, put it into practice at the first opportunity.

the loaf by the added ingredients, making the fat become edible meat. This made the total cost per pound of edible meat lower than in any other cut, even at the same price for the butcher's weight.

Third—Braised round is an inexpensive meat, with practically no loss except that of evaporation. It costs only a few cents more per pound than beef loaf.

Fourth—Boiled rib end is usually an expensive meat because a large percentage is lost in waste. The finished product is not desirable from the housekeeper's standpoint, as that of other cuts. All of its possibilities are found in the round and at less expenditure of money and time.

Fifth—Rib roast gives a fair share of fine meats at an average price. The indications are that the amount of loss waste is lost in waste. The finished product is not desirable from the housekeeper's standpoint, as that of other cuts. All of its possibilities are found in the round and at less expenditure of money and time.

Sixth—Porter house, either as roast or as steak, is a most expensive meat, largely because of its usual excessive loss in waste.

Seventh—The loss by evaporation is greatest in lean meats and least in excessively fat meats. It is also greater in small cuts than in large ones.

Eighth—Long cooking increases the loss in evaporation of water and in the loss of fat.

Ninth—The fatter the animal the lower the percentage of loss in bone. An apparent exception to this rule exists in the loin cuts from the lean cow when compared with fat steers. This is probably due to skeletal differences based on sex or breed.

Tenth—Bone loses weight in cooking. The percentage of bone in the standing rib roasts, roasted with the long left in, is not so high as that of the other roasts. The roasts which were boned before roasting. It was not determined whether this is due to water loss only or whether other substances also are lost to the meat from the time the bone is cooking.

Eleventh—The juiciness of the roast seems to be directly proportioned to the amount of fat it contains.

Twelfth—The fat roasts of this series are of higher flavor than the lean roasts.

Thirteenth—The amount of waste fat was small in the beef loaf, because series are of higher flavor than the large amount of it was held in lean roasts.

Fourteenth—The amount of waste fat was small in the beef loaf, because series are of higher flavor than the large amount of it was held in lean roasts.

Fifteenth—The amount of waste fat was small in the beef loaf, because series are of higher flavor than the large amount of it was held in lean roasts.

JAIL NEARLY EMPTY; PRISONERS AT WORK

Three Confined Held on Criminal Charges—All Others Working Under Commitment Law.

Rock county's jail is nearly empty at the present time. There are only three prisoners confined in it and they are being held to face criminal charges; Jack Moore on charges preferred by a little boy, William Ambrose on charges preferred by his daughter and Robert Smith, an inmate of the county farm. All others whose sentences have not expired are at work in various places under the new commitment law. Three are working on farms and one in a janitorial capacity. Two who are dependent upon them have each paid $8.25 into the county treasury. The law requires that in such instances those serving time must pay $1 a day to the county. Should any one be notified to obtain employment for any prisoner who has others dependent on him the county shall pay $1 a day to such dependents.

The demand for good machinists and farm hands is sufficient to provide work for all prisoners who are capable but Sheriff Whipple fears that unless the county itself provides work none will be found for habitual drunkards who cannot undertake anything but common labor. The sheriff never knows how many he will get and when they will come, what work they are capable of doing, and whether there is any demand for it. A road crew in the county recently notified the sheriff that he could find work for five or six men.

ESTATE IS SETTLED AFTER FORTY YEARS

Property of Preserved Albee Who Died in 1876 Finally Divided Among His Children.

After nearly forty years the estate of the late Preserved Albee who died in 1876, will be finally settled and the property will be divided equally among his four children, J. P. Albee of this city, Mary C. Payne of South Haven, Mich., and Sybil A. Donaldson of Barton City, Mich., and the heirs of Daniel N. Albee of South Haven. Mr. Albee left his property in trust for his widow, his second wife, who passed away last May. She resided on the old Albee homestead which comprised seventeen acres of land and a small settlement. A road crew in the county recently notified the sheriff that he could find work for five or six men.

ERUPTION ALL OVER CHILD'S BODY

Began With Small Red Spots. Cried Almost Day and Night. Used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. Well in One Week.

R. F. D. No. 2, Jackson, Mo.—"Our daughter who is ten months old was suffering from an eruption all over the body. In the beginning they were small red spots and afterwards turned to bloody sores. We tried all sorts of ointments but they did not procure any relief for our child. She had no rest day or night and we tried everything to procure relief for our baby. She cried almost day and night and we scarcely could touch her, because she was covered with sores from head to foot. We had heard about the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and made a trial with them, and after using the remedies, that is to say, the soap and the ointment, only a few days passed and our child could sleep well and after one week she was totally well." (signed) August F. Bartels, Nov. 25, 1912.

"THE SPENDTHRIFT" PLEASES AUDIENCE

Interesting Drama Dealing With Modern Problems Given at Myers Theatre.

Two audiences were pleased at the four act drama, "The Spendthrift," by Porter Browne, at the Myers theatre Monday afternoon and evening. The cast was small but well balanced. Marion Sherwood taking the leading part and the climax during the third act was well carried off by Miss Sherwood. Janesville theatre goers will remember her acting in "The Thief," which appeared on the Janesville stage last year.

The plot deals with a wife's fondness for extravagance, leading her husband to go beyond his means and finally ends with bankruptcy confronting him. Just before the crash his wife presents him with funds enough to stem his downfall. Her husband, becoming suspicious of the source of the loan, finds that she gained the money from his most dangerous business rival. In explanation, falsehood enters into her tale and he, in a fit of anger, leaves her.

When left to her own resources true love for her husband holds her from the temptations of greater New York and being forced to see the economical side of living, goes her husband to insolvent.

After leaving his wife Lee Barclay, in the east of Richard Ward, a tireless search for her and finds her earning her own living as a governess. True love unites the two, with a different view to life.

An interesting story of love, the leading man's brother, "Hunt" Ward and Charlie Van Zandt, a rich heirless, the part being taken by Miss Lillian Morris, runs through the play.

Philip Thomsen, taking the part of the attorney and personal friend of Richard Ward, was well taken by Charles Fulton. The acting of Lee Barclay as Richard Ward was interesting and he carried his part in a convincing manner. The plot of the drama leaves a profound impression upon the audience.

Mary Anderson to visit native land.

Mary Anderson, her most recent photograph.

Among the most pleasant of recent theatrical tidings is the announcement that Mary Anderson, "our Mary," -- she was known to the last generation of play-goers, intends paying her native land a visit in the near future—not a professional visit, of course, as she retired from the stage at the zenith of her fame, the most beloved actress of her day.

Mrs. Anderson was not only a great popular favorite and a beautiful woman, but she did much for the stage and its profession. She seemed to personify Purity on the stage, and she made friends in the most exclusive circles, doing much to erase the prejudice that still existed against stage people a generation ago.

THE TOURIST

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Slawash."

The tourist is a patient beast of burden who spends his summers carrying American cash to Europe and lugging back souvenirs.

As a rule, the tourist is more overworked on the way over than he is on the return trip.

The tourist must not be confused with the traveler. A traveler is a man who goes away in order to feel at home. If he were to be called a tourist he would rise up and stab his defamer with an Italian cleaver.

The traveler goes away to travel for years at a stretch and nothing irritates him so much as the sight of a dusty but determined American tourist going over in two months the ground he has been painstakingly been covering for the last three years.

When the traveler remembers how it took him three weeks to look at the picture of St. Sebastian, collecting hostile arrows and three months to investigate Chianti wine in its native land, he boils with indignation at the tourist who does a whole armory in a day and contents himself with the national red ink of Italy at his meals.

To the traveler as he inchworms slowly over the map of Europe learning the smells of Italy by heart and forgetting who the last president of the United States was, the tourist is nothing but a nuisance. Strange to say, the tourist regards the traveler with the same affection.

America is full of brave and noble tourists who have refrained heroically from scattering the skull stuffing of the traveler who has met them on ship board and has said kindly, "On my first useless trips to Europe, I too was enthusiastic."

The tourist is usually a tourist because he has too much to do in America to waste all his time in Europe. Many a tired school teacher who has spent six weeks in Europe and ten years preparing for the trip could take a chronic traveler aside and tell him more of the more aged hemisphere than he had ever suspected.

Always excepting the wines and hotels, nobody knows as much about these subjects as the traveler—not even the hotelkeepers and the wine makers.

The tourist sees Europe on the run because that is all the time or money he has. With the same time the traveler would not get the bill of fare of the first hotel entirely considered and with the same money he would stay at home.

The tourist misses a great deal because he is in such a hurry. This is one of the great advantages of being a tourist. There is a great deal in Europe which can only be missed that way. We would not think of going to a tourist for inside information regarding Monte Carlo and the Ritz-Carleton restaurants. But he usually knows who built the Coliseum and on American history he is immense.

One can always tell whether a man is a tourist or a traveler by the way he looks at America when he returns. If it is a pretty good country he is a tourist.

Bovina Center, N.Y.—"For six years I have not had as good health as I have now. I was very young when my first baby was born and my health was very bad after that. I was not regular and I had pains in my back and was so poorly that I could hardly take care of my two children. I doctored with several doctors but got no better. They told me there was no help without an operation. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has helped me wonderfully. I do most of my own work now and take care of my children. I recommend your remedies to all suffering women."

Mrs. WILLARD A. GRAHAM, Care of ELSWORTH TUTTLE, Bovina Center, N.Y.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy we know for women's ills. If you need such a medicine why don't you try it?

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

CHAPTER XXII.

The Man Next Door.

When, three hours previous, Darrow had arisen with the remark before chronicled, Jack Warford had followed him in the expectation of a long expedition. To the young man's surprise it lasted just to the hall. There Darrow stopped before the blank door of an apparently unused office. Into the lock of this he cautiously fitted a key, manipulated it for a moment, and turned to Jack with an air of satisfaction.

"You have your gun with you?" he asked.

Jack patted his outside pocket. "Very well, now listen here: I am going to leave the key in the lock. If you hear me whistle sharply, get in as quickly as you know how, and get to shooting. Shoot to kill. If it happens to be dark and you can not make us out, shoot both. Take no chances. On your quickness and your accuracy may depend the lives of the whole city. Do you understand?"

"I understand," said Jack steadily. "Are you sure you can make yourself head above all this row?"

Darrow nodded and slipped inside the door. He found the office chamber unlighted save by the subdued illumination that came in around the drawn shades of the window. Against the dimness he could just make out the gleaming of batteries in rows. An ordinary deal table supported a wireless sender. A figure stood before the darkened window, the figure of a little, old, bent man facing as though looking out. Through the closed casement the roar of the panic-stricken city sounded like a flood. The old man was in the attitude of one looking out intently. Once he raised both arms, the fists clenched, high above his head.

Darrow stole forward as quietly as he could. When he was about halfway across the room the old man turned and saw him. For the briefest instant he stared at the intruder; then, with remarkable agility, cast himself toward the table on which stood the wireless sender. Darrow, too, sprang forward. They met across the table. Darrow clutched the old man's wrists.

Immediately began a desperate and silent trial of strength. The old man developed an unexpected power. The table lay between them, prohibiting a closer grip. Inch by inch, impelled by the man's iron will, his hand forced his way toward the sending key. Darrow put forth all his strength to prevent. There was no violent struggle, no noise; simply the pressure of opposing forces. Gradually the scientist's youth prevailed against the older man's desperation. The hand creeping toward the sender came to a stop. Then, all at once, the older man's resistance collapsed entirely.

Darrow swept his arm back, stepped around the table, and drew his opponent, almost unresisting, back to the window.

"Jack!" he called. At the sound of his voice the old man gathered his last vitality in a tremendous effort to jerk loose from his captor. Catching Darrow unawares, he almost succeeded in getting free. The flash was too brief. He managed only to rap the young man's head rather sharply against a shade-fitting of the window.

The outer door jerked open, and Jack Warford leaped into the room, revolver in hand. Darrow called an instant warning.

"All right!" he shouted. "Turn on the light, next you somewhere. Shut the door."

These orders were obeyed. The electric flared. By its light the office was seen to be quite empty save for a cabinet full of books and papers; rows and rows of battery jars; the receiving and sending apparatus of a wireless outfit; the deal table, and one wooden chair. Darrow looked around keenly.

"That's all right, Jack," said he. "Just get around here cautiously and raise the window shade. Look out you don't get near the table. That's it. Now just help me get this man a little away from the table. Good! Now, tie him up. No, bring the chair. Tie him in that chair. Gendy. That's all right. Whew!"

"You're hurt," said Jack.

Darrow touched his forehead.

"A bump," he said briefly. "Well, Jack, my son, we've done it!"

"You don't mean to say—" cried Jack.

Darrow nodded.

"Now, my friend," he addressed the huddled figure in the chair, "the game is up. You are caught, and you must realize it. He surveyed the captive thoughtfully. "Tell me, who are you?" he added. "I should know you, for you are a great discoverer."

The old man stared straight at his interlocutor with his expressionless eyes, behind which no soul, no mind, no vitality even seemed to lie.

Darrow asked him several more questions, to which he received no replies. The man sat like a captured beast.

"I'm sorry," said Darrow to Jack. "I should like to have talked with him. Such a man is worth knowing; he has delved deep."

"He'll talk yet, when he gets over his grouch," Jack surmised.

But Darrow shook his head. "The man is imbecile," he said. "He has been mentally unbalanced; and his disorder has grown on him lately. When I drove back his wrist just now the cord snapped in his brain."

Jack turned to stare at the captive. "By Jove, I believe you're right!" said he at last.

Darrow was standing looking down on the deal table.

"Come here, Jack," said he. "I want you to look at the deadliest engine of destruction ever invented or wielded by mortal man. I suspect that if you were to reach out your hand and hold down the innocent-looking telegraph key there you would instantly destroy every living creature in this city."

Jack turned a little pale, and put both hands behind him.

Darrow laughed. "Feel tempted?" he inquired.

"Makes me feel a little dizzy, like being on a height," confessed Jack. "How's the trick turned?"

"I don't know," said Darrow. "I'm going to find out if I can."

Without attempting to touch anything, he proceeded to examine carefully every detail of the apparatus.

"The batteries are nothing extraordinary, except in strength," he told Jack, "and as near as I can make out the instrument is like any other. It must be some modifications in the sending apparatus, some system of 'tuning,' perhaps—it's only a surmise. We'll just disconnect the batteries," he concluded, "before we go to monkeying."

He proceeded carefully and methodically to carry out his expressed intention. When he had finished the task he heaved a deep sigh of relief. "I'm glad you feel that way, too," said Jack. "I didn't know what might not happen."

"Me, either," confessed Darrow. "But now I think we're safe."

He proceeded on a methodical search through the intricacies of the apparatus. For a time Jack followed him about, but after a while wearied of so profitless an occupation, and so took to smoking on the windowledge. Darrow extended his investigations to the bookcase, and to a drawer in the deal table. For over two hours he sorted notes, compared, and ruminated, his brows knit in concentration. Jack did not try to interrupt him. At the end of the time indicated, the scientist looked up and made some trivial remark.

"Got it?" asked Jack. "Yes," replied Darrow soberly. He reflected for several minutes longer; then moved to the window and looked out over the city. Absolutely motionless there he stood while the night fell, oblivious alike to the roar and crash of the increasing panic and to the silent figures in the darkened room behind him. At last he gave a sigh, walked quietly to the electric light, and turned it on.

"It's the biggest thing—and the simplest—the world has ever known in physics, Jack," said he, "but it's got to go."

"What?" asked Jack, rousing from the mood of waiting into which he had loyally forced himself in spite of the turmoil outside.

"The man has perfected a combined system of special tuning and definite electrical energy," said Darrow, "by which through an ordinary wireless sender he can send forth into the ether what might be called deadening or nullifying waves. You are no doubt familiar with the common experiment by which two sounds will produce a silence. This is just like that. By means of this, within the radius of his sending instrument and for a period of time up to the capacity of his batteries, a man can absolutely stop vibration of either heat, sound, light, or electricity length. It is entirely a question of simple formulae. Here they are."

He held out four closely written pages bound together with manuscript fasteners.

"No man has ever before attained this knowledge or this power," went on Darrow, after a moment; "and probably never again in the history of the race will exactly this combination of luck and special talent occur. These four pages are unique."

He laid them on the edge of the table, produced a cigarette, lighted it, picked up the four pages of formulas, and held the burning match to their edges. The flame caught, flared up the flimsy paper. Darrow dropped the burning corners as it scorched his fingers. It fell to the floor, flickered, and was gone.

Jack leaped forward with an exclamation of dismay. The old man bowed to the chair did not wink, but stared straight in front of him, his eyes fixed like those of an owl or a wildcat.

"For God's sake, Darrow!" cried Jack Warford. "Do you know what you have done?"

"Perfectly," replied Darrow calmly. "This is probably the greatest achievement of the scientific intellect; but it must go. It would give to men an unchecked power that belongs only to the gods."

CHAPTER XXIII.

How It All Was.

For his share in the foregoing Percy Darrow was extensively blamed. It was universally conceded that his action in permitting Monsieur X to continue his activities up to the danger point was inexcusable. The public mind should have been reassured long before. Much terror and physical suffering might thus have been avoided—not to speak of financial loss. Scientific men, furthermore, went frantic over his unwarranted destruction of the formulas. Percy Darrow was variously described as a heartless monster and a scientific vandal. To these aspersions he paid no attention whatever.

Helen Warford, however, became vastly indignant and partisan, and in consequence Percy Darrow's course in the matter received from her its full credit for a genuine altruism. However, also, held persistently to this point, as far as his editors would permit him, until at last, the public mind was somewhat calmed, attention was more focused on the means by which the man had reached his conclusions rather than on the use of them he had made.

The story was told three times by its chief actor: once to the newspapers, once to the capitalists from whom he demanded the promised reward, and once to the Warfords. This last account was the more detailed and interesting.

It was of a late afternoon again. The lamps were lighted, and tea was forward. Helen was manipulating the cups, Jack was standing ready to pass them, Mr. and Mrs. Warford sat in the background listening, and Darrow lounged gracefully in front of the fire. "From the beginning!" Helen was commanding him, "and expect interruptions."

"Well," began Darrow, "it's a little difficult to get started. But let's begin with the phenomena themselves. I've told you before, how, when I was in jail, I worked out their nature and the fact that they must draw their power from some source that could be exhausted or emptied. You have read Eldridge's reasoning as to why he thought Monsieur X was at a distance and on a height. He took as the basis of his reasoning one fact in connection with the wireless messages we were receiving—that they were faint, and therefore presumably far distant or sent by a weak battery. He neglected, or passed over as an important item of tuning, the further fact that the instrument in the Atlas Building was the only instrument to receive Monsieur X's messages."

"Now, that fact might be explained either on the very probable supposition that our receiving instrument happened in what we may call its undertones to be the only one tuned to the sending instrument of Monsieur X; or it might be because our instrument was nearer Monsieur X's instrument than any other. This was unlikely because of the quality of the sound—it sounded to the expert operator as though it came from a distance. Nevertheless, it was a possibility. Taken by itself, it was not nearly so good a possibility as the other. Therefore, Eldridge chose the other."

The Poet Philosopher

BY WALT MASON

The big men dare, and the big men do; they dream great dreams, which they make come true. They bridge the rivers and link the plains, and ward the land with their railway trains; they make the desert break forth in bloom, they send the cataract through a flume to turn the wheels of a thousand mills and bring the coin to a nation; this, the big men work and the big men plan, and, helping themselves, help their fellow men.

And the cheap men yelp at their carriage wheels, and the small dogs bark at the big dogs' heels; the big men sow while the cheap men sleep, and when they go to their fields to reap, the cheap men cry, "We must have a share of all the grain that they harvest from these men are pirates who sow and reap and plan and build while we are asleep! We'll legislate till they lose their hair! We'll pass new laws that will strip them bare! We'll tax them right and we'll tax them left, till of their plunder they are bereft; we'll show these men that we all despise their skill, their courage and enterprise!" So the small men yelp at the big men's heels; the big reformers with uplifted spears, the four-eyed dreamers with theories fine, which bring them maybe three cents a line, the thimble grinders which always veer to collar coin that they do not earn. And the big men sigh as they go their way; they'll balk at the whole blamed thing some day!

One Definition of Genius.

Often what we call genius of brilliancy is merely a strong personality.

"OW!" Corns? Use "GETS-IT"

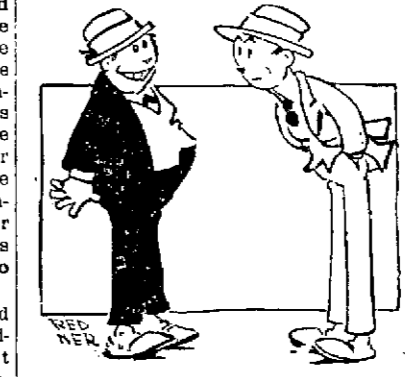

"GETS-IT," the New-Plan Corn Cure, Makes Any Corn Shrivels, Vanish. You'll say, "It does heat a how quick 'GETS-IT' got rid of that corn. It's all most magic." "GETS-IT" gets every corn, every time, as sure as the sun rises. It takes about 2 seconds to apply it. Corn pains stop, you forget the corn, the corn shrivels up, and it's gone! Ever try anything like that? You never did. There's no more fussing with plasters that press on the corn, no more salves that take off the surrounding flesh, no more bandages. No more knives, files or razors that make corns grow, and cause danger of blood poison. "GETS-IT" is equally harmless to healthy or irritated flesh. It "gets" every corn, wart, callus and bunion you've got. "GETS-IT" is sold at all druggists at 25 cents a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence Co., Chicago.

"Sir Arthur T. Quiller Couch, since he accepted the chair of English literature at Cambridge, has blossomed out as a very witty lecturer." "I attended one of 'Q's' lectures the last time I was in Cambridge. I still remember an anecdote where he illustrated the rottenness of fancy or blarney writing. 'He condemned, first, the fancy phrases so common in the magazines and popular novels—and then he said that these phrases were as absurd to cultivated ears as the telegram that the babu sent from Bombay to announce the death of his mother.' 'Regret to announce that hand which rocked the cradle has kicked the bucket.'"

Modern Illustrations.

The clergymen who formerly declared to their congregations that "we are standing on the brink of eternity" had an occasional accident in the hay fields or at logging bees to remind listeners that they were telling them a fearful truth. The modern clergyman may add: "Read tomorrow's papers if you have any doubts."

Michigan in Summer is termed the ideal vacation land and it would seem as if this were true, judging from the beautiful pictures of woods and streams illustrated in the booklet of the above title.

The many resorts of this state are described and illustrated and the book we believe, will be eagerly sought for by those planning a vacation in the northern woods.
